

DANIELSON AND PUTNAM NEWS

DANIELSON

A steam shovel and other equipment of a contracting company that is to build the state highway between Hampton and Brooklyn has arrived at the foot of Washington hill and active work will begin at once. The grading work to be done is considerable, but it is expected that work can be continued for at least three months, so good progress on the work to be done is expected to have been accomplished by December 1. It was stated here on Thursday that a large quantity of sugar will be put on the job, as labor is much more plentiful now than has been the case for the past three years.

Danielson, and the surrounding territory, is going to get the benefit of the sharp break in sugar prices—a break no severe that some holders of great quantities of sugar stand to lose immense sums of money.

It was stated here on Thursday that 2,000 bags of sugar—200,000 pounds—will be put on sale here next week, and that the price will be less than 18 cents a pound.

The price that will be quoted will be lower than any heard of on sugar in this section for many months.

Arthur W. Aldrich, who has been manager of the Palisade kennels of Henri L. Haer, of East Killingly for the past year and a half and who has been at the police dog farm for the past three years, has resigned his position and will devote his attention to his farm.

Mr. Aldrich will be succeeded by Augustus Whitten, whose home is in Auburn, N. Y., but who comes to Danielson to look after his attention to dog raising and training since his childhood and is thoroughly experienced. He has arrived at East Killingly and is taking up his duties there.

James P. Aldrich of East Killingly received an injury that may cost him the sight of his right eye while he was at work Thursday morning at the plant of the Asenetic Products company at East Killingly.

He was using the blade of a screw driver in an effort to bend a wire when the screw driver slipped, the blade striking him squarely in the eye and injuring the member very severely. Mr. Aldrich, who for a number of years has been a registrar of voters for the town of Killingly, was brought to Danielson in the automobile of Henry Oatley of the company and treated at the office of Dr. George M. Burroughs. Later he went to his home in East Killingly.

Tree trimming, lawn grading, landscape work, please send all orders before September 1. Victor Perreault, Box 21, Danielson—adv.

It was indicated here on Thursday that power developed by the Eastern Connecticut Power Company, the corporation whose high tension line comes down from Massachusetts through the towns of Thompson, Putnam and Brooklyn, but does not touch the territory of the town of Killingly, will come into use in this territory within a few weeks. Just what plans are being made for the larger use of the power developed by this company by concerns doing business in this immediate vicinity has not been given out, but it is understood that the arrangements that are under way are of importance.

Chautauqua guarantees here in Danielson are paying 52 cents each to make up a small deficit that existed after the recent series of entertainments. This small extra assessment the guarantees are paying with great good will, appreciative as they are of the enjoyment they get out of their series of entertainments at such a low fixed cost each summer.

Joseph N. Lavalley and family have returned from a motor trip into Canada and through northern New York, their tour taking them into the Lake George country and over the Mohawk trail.

Night Superintendent Louis Pelouin and members of his family have gone to Canada for a visit with relatives at Montreal, St. Paul and other points. They expect to be away for about two weeks. According to persons in close touch with the situation hereabouts, a surprising number of farmers are preparing to sell their herds of cattle rather than face a winter of caring for the animals under conditions that make the milk business barely profitable.

It was stated at the office of the Rhode Island Company here Thursday that no freight for the Danielson-Providence line will be received after 1 o'clock next Tuesday forenoon. This brings sharply to the minds of many that transportation is on the eve of losing a transportation line of great value to it and a service that will be greatly missed. Motor trucks now must be resorted to for quick service between Danielson and the Rhode Island city and to make this service at all permanent and certain it is imperative that the state highway by Little Rock be completed at the earliest possible moment. This stretch of highway is more urgently needed than ever before.

There was an item in the papers that was read with real interest in Danielson Thursday morning—that coal prices are breaking and that low quotations are to be expected.

The work of laying out foundations for new cement walks is continuing at Dayville.

Many were at Wildwood park Thursday evening for the dancing.

J. C. Thorner of New Bedford was a visitor with friends in Danielson on Thursday.

If trolley service is discontinued between Danielson and East Killingly other means must be found for transportation of mails between the two places. East Killingly people do not favor being put on a rural delivery route.

Chief John McFarland has some new "No Parking" signs ready to put up at places in the business section.

Good progress is being made on the erection of the large new apartment house being erected at Connecticut Village by the Connecticut Mills company. The new structure is near the Gahies.

Miss Anna Lajenne and Miss Flora Duhamel left Thursday for a visit with friends at Taftville.

There are indications that several hundred Killingly women will become voters as soon as the opportunity is offered. A heavy percentage of these newly enfranchised citizens are working women.

Mr. Waldo Richmond received a warm welcome in Brooklyn where he gave an entertainment before an audience that included many that have known him for years.

Miss Marie Little, 26, was found dead in bed Tuesday morning at the home of Miss Nellie Dwyer where she had been making her home in Elmville.

Circumstances surrounding her death led to an investigation by Coroner H. E. Bill and Dr. George W. Burroughs, medical examiner. The coroner later stated that Mrs. Little's death probably was due to her having taken poison during a period of despondency. She was taken violently ill last Sunday and had been vomiting blood.

Mrs. Little who had been living apart from her husband had supported herself and two boys by working in an Elmville mill. Her health failed and the mill closed and she became discouraged. She was the daughter of Robert Park, now of Boston, formerly of Danielson.

The republican caucus held here Thursday named the following delegations: State: E. H. Keach, R. C. Young, F. L. Beasing, Fred Harrington.

day noon for New York from which city she will sail on Saturday for Germany where she is to make her home. Miss Borbauer will enter that country by the way of Rotterdam, where she has been anxious to return to her home where she has relatives. They now write that conditions there are such that she will not be able to make her trip, and have no trouble after reaching the other side.

All of the children of Windham county temporary home were entertained Thursday afternoon at Roseland park, Woodstock by members of the Putnam Lodge of Elks. The youngsters were taken to the park in the automobiles of members, and there everything possible was done to give them a good time. A picnic lunch was served under the direction of E. E. Robbins.

Carl Anderson of Putnam left Thursday for a trip to Sweden. He has been in this country for nine years, and this is his first visit to his old home.

State's Attorney Charles E. Searls of Putnam and Thompson will some day this week reach the fiftieth anniversary of his admission to the bar of the state of Connecticut. It is possible that Wednesday was the anniversary day, although it may have been Thursday, or even today, (Friday). That Mr. Searls has been practicing law in Putnam for a half century this week, there is no question, and the only thing that can't be established is the exact day of the week on which he was admitted to the profession. On Wednesday, for the first time, he learned that there is no record as far as can be established here, that he was ever admitted to practice. It would seem that court officials were not as painstaking and particular about their entries fifty years back as they are in this twentieth century, and were not always careful to put down in black and white for the benefit of posterity such routine matters as the admission of a young attorney to practice. Hence, it is that a search of the records available at the office of the clerk of the Windham county superior court fails to show the date.

On Thursday Mr. Searls recalled his examination and admission to practice. "I went down to Brooklyn in August, 1870," he said, "and it was there that I was admitted. The term of the court opened on the fourth Tuesday of the month, which would correspond to fifty years ago last Tuesday. I did not go down that day, but did make the trip on Wednesday, Thursday or Friday of that same week. Which of the three days it was I can't remember exactly."

According to Mr. Searls, Foster and Foster was holding the court, and Eric Fuller was acting as clerk. "I can recall but two members of the committee that examined me," said Mr. Searls. "One of the lawyers was John J. Ferris and the other was Judson M. Lyon. During the noon recess I was questioned for about a half an hour. They asked me if I knew what law was and if I was a college graduate, and then broadened out a little. That was about all there was to it in those days. At the afternoon session of the court, I was sworn in." Mr. Searls recalled to mind the difference in the procedure of admission to the bar then and now. The present student must go to New Haven or Hartford and there submit to a long and thorough examination lasting for a day or two. After his admittance Mr. Searls came to Putnam and hung out his sign which announced to the community that he was an attorney at law. His first office was in the room now occupied by the Putnam Savings Bank, on Main street. For two years Mr. Searls was located there, and the savings bank was located down stairs with the First National bank. When a law was passed that a savings bank and a national bank could not conduct business in the same rooms, the savings bank went up stairs and Mr. Searls was forced to vacate his offices. He then went into the Hathaway block with Lucius H. Fuller, over the score now occupied by the Putnam Hardware Corporation. In 1877 the block was burned. Mr. Searls did not lose any of his belongings except for a carpet and some minor possessions. His books were all taken safely from the building. It was then that Mr. Searls moved into the building where his present office is located, and the office that he then occupied he still uses, along with several adjoining ones. The first case that Mr. Searls ever had was for Lucius H. Fuller who was then, and still is, a citizen of Putnam.

Charles Edwin Searls was born in Pomfret on March 25, 1846, the son of Edwin Clark and Caroline (Mathews) Searls. At the age of four he came to Brooklyn, N. Y., and his early schooling was obtained in private schools there. When eleven years old, he moved to Thompson, where he attended school. He made his home. He was graduated from Thompson Academy in 1861 and in the fall of the same year entered Yale university. He graduated from that institution with the class of 1868. He then entered the law office of Gilbert W. Phillips in Putnam, where he studied for two years previous to his admission to the bar. Since 1868 he has held the office of state's attorney for Windham county. In 1881 he was elected to the distinguished office of secretary of state, under the administration of Gov. Hobart Bigelow. Twice he has represented Thompson in the general assembly, first in 1871, and again in 1886. In 1892-1893 he served as state senator from the 23rd district. Mr. Searls was a delegate in 1886 from this state to the republican national convention at St. Louis. He is a member of the American bar association, and also of the Connecticut state bar association. In addition to serving on important committees of the latter organization he was honored in 1915 by election to its presidency. Mr. Searls has always been interested in the affairs of his home town and has served it at various times as town clerk, justice of the peace and school officer. He has been a trustee of the Day-Kimball hospital in Putnam and was a director of the Thompson Savings bank. He is a member of Pal Upsilon fraternity and the Wolf's Head society, both of Yale. On October 8, 1902, Mr. Searls married
